Brief introduction of the institute	Division of International Studies There are three tracks in the Division of International Studies: Business, Korean Language and Culture Education. The program characteristics of each track are explained briefly below. <ul style="list-style-type: none"> ▪ Business Business track offers courses related to business administration and international trade, and its current official name is international trade management. The program aims to understand the activities of modern firms. The courses offered in this program are taught in English. The class consists of Korean Students as well as international students from many different countries. If a foreign student is admitted to the division of international studies, he/she may choose this track as a major or a minor. As for a domestic student, he/she is supposed to have an undeclared and exploratory major, and the student may choose this track later on, as a part of his/her academic program. ▪ Korean Language and Culture Education This track provides educational services so that foreign students can develop their understanding of Korean language and Korean culture at an advanced level. In particular, it offers courses related to Korean language, Korean culture, and Korean interpretation and translation. The goal is to produce competent graduates who can be recognized as experts in the field of Korean language education, interpretation and translation. Only foreign students may choose this track as a major or a minor, though some of the courses, such as tandem, are open to domestic students. The classes are taught in Korean.
